

To whom it may concern,

I'm writing this testimonial for Drew Sparkman as a former student of his. Mr Drew taught me English Literature for a year, Theory of Knowledge for another year (as a core subject for the IB) and was my tutor.

Not only was he a dedicated and enthusiastic teacher, he was also an ideal role model. Always there to calm us of our worries and concerns regarding the new education system and new teachers who he was already experienced with.

As a student, I can rely on him inside and outside of school. He was the one who started talking to us about university applications, for us to take all Internal Assessments and essays seriously throughout the intensive two years of the IB, and yet he was still able to make us laugh and feel a little less overwhelmed by the amount of work. For the three years that I've known Mr Drew he has been a fair and professional teacher, immensely helpful tutor and a great person all in all.

I feel very lucky to have crossed paths with him, since I have acquired many useful skills and learned many life lessons from him, such as essay writing skills and that time management/diligence is key for my future.

I highly believe that any school institution or pupil will not regret having Drew Sparkman as a faculty member because he has a lot to offer and will dedicate himself to his work.

King regards,
